THE JOHN DIVINE JONES FUND

THE John Divine Jones Fund Series" has been so named by The New York Historical Society in honor of their enlightened and generous fellow-member, the late John Divine Jones, whose great interest in the history of his native State has led him to endow the Society with a fund of six thousand dollars for publishing works of an historical nature which may not fall within the scope of its ordinary "Publication Fund."

The object of the Series is fully set forth in the Plan and Declaration of Trust on which the Society formally accepted the gift of the Fund for its establishment. It is to print, publish, and sell, under the direction of the Publication Committee of the Society:

First, Such manuscript historical and biographical writings, memoirs, documents and records, private or public, official or not official, ecclesiastical or secular, civil or military, which shall relate to, or illustrate, the history of New York as a Colony or a State, or the history of any of the Dutch, English, or French colonies in America, and which shall have been written prior to the year 1800.

Second, Such historical works or documents relating to the history of New York, or that of the United States, or of either of them, which shall treat of, or relate to, events of persons, which shall have happened, or who shall have died, at least fifty years prior to the publication of the same.

Third, That the cost of the volumes be paid out of the Fund; the volumes so printed to be sold under the direction of the Publication Committee; and when the proceeds have been received, the same to be employed in the printing of other volumes, which in their turn are to be sold, and thus permanently to continue the issue of the Series.

Fourth, That under no circumstances shall any new volume or volumes be put to press until the proceeds of the sales of the preceding volume or volumes shall be in the possession of the Society, to an amount which shall in the judgment of the Executive Committee be equal to the cost of producing such new volume or volumes.

PREFACE

THIS volume, the third of the series of the publications of "The John Divine Jones Fund," contains an Orderly Book, 1776-1778, relating to the Battalions of Loyalists or Provincial Troops, raised for the defence of Long Island, and commanded by Brigadier General Oliver De Lancey, and mentions several regiments of the British Army and other provincial troops.

Upon the submission of Long Island to the British in 1776, Sir William Howe, Commander in Chief of the British Forces made the following appointments which were announced at Headquarters, New York Island, September 29, 1776, viz.:

Oliver De Lancey, Esq., Brigadier General and Colonel of the 1st Battalion; John Harris Cruger, Esq., Lieut. Colonel; Captain Joseph Greene, late of the 40th Regiment, Major; 2nd Battalion, George Brewerton, Esq., Colonel; Stephen De Lancey, Esq., Lieut. Colonel; Thomas Bowden, Esq., Major; 3rd Battalion, Gabriel Ludlow, Esq., Colonel; Richard Hewlet, Esq., Lieut. Colonel; A. Menzies, Esq., Major; A. Campbell, Esq., Major Brigade.

The above officers had "offered their services to raise a Brigade of provincials of three Battalions of 500 men each for the service of His Majesty and the suppression of the present unnatural Rebellion." The Brigade was raised for the defense of Long Island with the understanding they were not to leave the Island for any service elsewhere. The entire third Battalion consisted of natives or Inhabitants of Queens County. In the winter of 1776-77 these battalions were stationed one at Oyster Bay, one at Huntington and one at Brookhaven. In making out the commission for this Corps, after the words "for the defence of Long Island" the words "and other exigencies" were added and in May, 1777, the 1st and 2nd battalions were ordered to embark at Flushing, L.I., and land at Morrisania from whence they proceeded to Kingsbridge. The following month the 1st battalion returned to Long Island while the 2nd battalion remained at Kingsbridge.

In the Spring of 1778 the forts which had been erected at Huntington and Brookhaven were ordered to be destroyed much to the dismay of the Inhabitants of Long Island who were thereafter harassed by raiding parties of the Americans coming from the Connecticut shore. The 1st and 3rd battalions then encamped near Newtown, L.I.

When the Southern campaign was organized the 1st and 2nd battalions of De Lancey's Brigade were sent in November 1778 to Georgia, with several other Regiments all under the command of Lieut. Col. Archibald Campbell where they served until the evacuation of Georgia and South Carolina by the British.

The 3rd battalion was stationed at Lloyd's Neck where they remained until the evacuation of New York City. All three battalions disbanded in Nova Scotia.

This Orderly Book covers the period from September 1776, to June 1, 1778, and relates mainly to the 1st and 3rd battalion of De Lancey's Brigade and their service on Long Island.

The earliest entry in the orderly book September 29, 1776 telling of the organization of the Brigade, appears after the date of May 12, 1777, in the original and consequently is so printed.

The Orderly Book is followed by a list of the New York Loyalists or Adherents to the British Crown in the City of New York, during the War of the Revolution, compiled by William Kelby, late Librarian of The New York Historical Society.

Mr. Kelby for years had made a study of the Loyalists, with a view of publishing a volume, with notes, but his death on July 27, 1898, prevented the completion of the work. The list is from contemporary manuscripts and newspapers covering the period 1776-1783, and is alphabetically arranged.

As the Rum allowed by his Majesty to his Troops in these Quarters is full Sufficient for them — It is Expected from the Inhabitants that they will not sell to a soldier Rum under any pretence whatever as the Certain Consequences are involving men into Scrapes & Disgrace unfitting them for Duty & Leading them into acts of Disorder they otherwise would avoid — to Prevent this Evil effectually It is Expected that all Officers & Soldiers as Soon as it Comes to their Knowledge will not fail Immediately to give Notice to the Commanding Officer of the Person or Persons who shall presume to act Contrary to this Order that they may be Dealt with according to their Demerits
